Scientific Program Highlights

Join the learning. Join the discussion. Be part of the group that deals with the problem.

This issue of the ISH 2010 newsletter focuses on an important issue of Global Cardiovascular Risk Reduction - aging. The aging population in most countries challenges us to understand the biology of aging and specifically how its impact on the arterial system leads to cardiac, renal and cerebrovascular disease. One of the symposia at ISH 2010 deals with the basic science of vascular aging. Another symposium deals with the current realities of hypertension in older patients and discusses what the thresholds and targets should be for treatment.
